

These price rises are not sustainable for domestic and business uses. Further planning into future power security must be applied as the highest priority. Use overseas models as an example.